SCIENCE

Topic: Colour changing Experiment (Acid ,Base)

Acids and Base are substances that we use in our daily life.

With an adult's help, explore chemistry in the kitchen! Repeat the experiment with items from your kitchen like vinegar, detergent liquid, milk, lemon juice, coffee.

Use the red cabbage / Beetroot scale to identify the acid and base.

Procedure:

Step 1 :Tear half a head of cabbage into small pieces and place them in a large bowl.

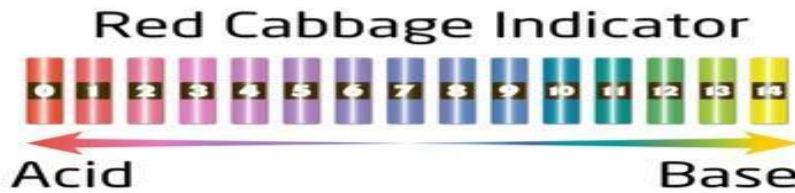

Step 2: Fill the bowl with warm tap water and let it sit for an hour.

Step 3:Pour the red cabbage mixture into a large cup. The purple liquid in the jar is your red cabbage indicator!

Step 4: Take your two remaining cups, and fill both of them halfway with water. Add a scoop of lemon juice to the first cup and a scoop of detergent liquid to the second cup.

Step 5: Use the teaspoon to add small amounts of red cabbage indicator to both cups. (If you don't see the color change, keep adding more indicator.)

Note that acids turn water into warm colors, while bases turn water into cool colors! What colors do you see?

Observation:
